

BRYAN ATTACKS THE PRESIDENT'S POLICIES

Declares That Executive Has Dodged the Vital National Issues of the Day.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Dec. 21.—(N. Y. J. Bryan spoke to 200 people at Brooks' Hotel here this afternoon. He spoke a little over an hour, closing with the announcement that at the banquet tonight he would continue his remarks on the administration of President Roosevelt, whom he commended for "turning public attention to the ethics of money-making."

Comments Course Taken.

Mr. Bryan commended Gov. Haskell's inaugural address and message to the Legislature. He congratulated the new State on being the first to promulgate a banking law providing for a depositors' guaranty fund. He reiterated his declaration favoring the election of United States Senators by direct vote. The President, he said, is a hired man and should be regarded as such. He referred to the initiative and referendum as an innovation on the Constitution, its best feature, and predicted that other States would model their basic law after that of Oklahoma. He replied to the attack of President Roosevelt by saying that he did not take back his assertion that the United States is the best governed country in the world. He said, "This is not the only thing for which I could commend him, but I am especially glad because he is a hired man, and he is getting the credit for it."

Arguments Drags On In Fish-Harriman Case.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—R. S. Lovett, representing E. H. Harriman in the Illinois Central hearing before Judge Ball, argued today against making permanent the injunction recently obtained by Stuyvesant Fish. Mr. Lovett admitted that a foreign corporation could not purchase stock in an Illinois corporation for the purpose of controlling with the idea of destroying competition. He claimed, however, that it could invest money in an Illinois corporation merely for the sake of procuring dividends. Mr. Lovett declared that of the money invested in the Illinois Central by the Union Pacific ($25,000,000) was received from the sale of Northern Pacific stock. He asserted that this money would have lain idle unless some such investment as Illinois Central stock had been available. J. M. Dickinson, general counsel for the Illinois Central, began his argument this afternoon by claiming that the arguments will be finished early next week.

Railroad Notes.

D. A. Wadsworth, city ticket and passenger agent of the Colorado Midland here, left Saturday night for Denver where he will spend Christmas with friends and relatives. H. Paul Smith of the local passenger force of the Rock Island, will leave for Denver Monday evening to spend the holidays.

The Orchard on the Hill.

There's an orchard on a hillside where a boy stood long ago. When the trickiest apple in bloom was hanging from the tree, and the west wind may be blowing softly through the branches still. As it blew from the stubbles through the stubbles on the hill. When the heights beyond the valley softly loomed through purple haze. And he dreamed of future triumphs to be won in splendid ways.

How to Lay the Dust.

Attempts by automobilists and others to lay the dust in thoroughfares by means that shall prove durable and not too costly have been frequent of late. The writer in Automobile Weekly, in 1880 could find no use for the first time upon some local roads in France, with such indifferent results that the experiment was not repeated. At Oran, in 1895, a similar thoroughfare was treated with oil of aloe and petroleum, which so fulfilled anticipations that other Algerian towns adopted the precaution. The similar doctored, in 1898, of sixty odd miles of road in California, with the same result. This year, however, except that in this case success was due in no small measure to the comparative cheapness of petroleum oil ($5 a ton).

Pepper Cured Hiccoughs.

A new and immediate remedy for hiccoughs was discovered at the Hahnemann hospital Friday evening by Dr. Peters, by whom George Metcalf was cured of hiccoughs, which began two days ago, by means of a pinch of pepper. Metcalf had tried all kinds of remedies before coming to the hospital, but without avail. Two hospitals were visited, but the treatment he received was apparently of little good. The drugs he had taken at home. He became weaker and weaker, and could not eat or sleep. It was in this condition that he appeared at the Hahnemann hospital last evening. "Here is something you have never tried," said Dr. Peters. He gave the man a pinch of pepper. The man was hiccoughing violently at the time, but managed to inhale the stimulant. Tears came from his eyes as he died, and he sneezed violently. He sneezed again, and when he was through sneezing the hiccoughs were gone.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

HOW SANTA CLAUS MOVED FROM OLD HOLLAND TO THE NEW WORLD

By administering their children at this time of the year that Santa Claus comes on to the "good" little boys and girls of the land, the parents of Salt Lake are unconsciously perpetuating the custom that originated with the contented people who warmed the little hands and feet of the Dutch and the Dutch descendants centuries ago that unless they did as their fathers and mothers wished good Saint Nikolaus would not come on Christmas eve and stuff toys and presents in their stockings.

As the years passed, the practice in the medieval age of collecting presents and having some one assume the costume of a bishop and distribute them on the eve of the day assigned to the memory of the child's patron saint, St. Nicholas, who was supposed to remember and bless his little friends on December 6, was gradually changed until children learned to look forward to Christmas morning as the time when surprises were to be found in the little stockings that on the evening before hung limp by the bedside.

TRAIN RATS AS ALARM CLOCKS

Abu Conklin has closed his snake hatchery in the Warwick mountains and has gone into his winter quarters on Honeysuckle avenue, Montclair, N. J. Conklin has resumed his winter occupation of training white rats to be useful and helpful to man. Last year he trained some rats to carry a stout string to the top of a flagpole and pass it through the pulley at the top. He sold these rats at high prices to janitors of New York office steeples. Conklin trained other rats to run a sewing machine by treading the pedal. This year Conklin is training rats to take the place of alarm clocks. He knows that the rattle and jar of an alarm clock makes many persons very nervous for the rest of the day. He feeds his alarm rats only once a day; some at 5 a. m., some at 5:30 and some at 7 a. m. Each is so trained that at the hour of his meal he will hop at once to the room of the human that feeds it and gently tickles his ear until he awakes and feeds it. Conklin expects to sell many of these alarm rats to Montclair commuters, and he claims that the nervous conditions caused by alarm clocks will soon disappear from that happy place. He says his rats never rest, run down nor vary a second in giving their gentle alarm. Conklin will dye a green, green or blue if his customer thinks one such will wake him up quicker.

Rebuilding a Metropolis.

Gertrude Atherton, in the course of her noteworthy article in Harper's Weekly entitled "San Francisco and Her Peeks," gives, incidentally, some very valuable information on the remarkable and little realized extent to which the stricken city has been rebuilt—and rebuilt, says Mrs. Atherton, in such a way that its appearance is in many places greatly improved. These are the exact figures: Up to August 1, 1907, San Francisco building permits since the fire amounted to $79,152,447. The number of class A buildings erected are 47, costing $1,969,500; class B buildings, 76, costing $5,553,000; class C buildings, 941, costing $26,716,319. Frame structures, complying with building laws and classified as permanent, 2191, costing $28,072,475. For repairs and alterations, including permits for rehabilitation of buildings damaged by the fire, $6,441,112. This estimated cost must be added 15 per cent, as actual costs are proven to be, that much higher than the architect's estimate. Of this expenditure labor has received a percentage of $25,450,000. During the two years following the fire, the city has built buildings in that city amounted to $28,000,000. During one year following the San Francisco fire building permits have amounted to $60,169,923.

A Thread 1000 Miles Long.

"Sea Island cotton is the best kind," said a Southerner. "It is finer and silkier than any other cotton in the world. A pound of it can be spun into 4770 miles of thread." For an experiment, once in a while, a spinner spun a pound of Sea Island cotton into a single thread one thousand miles long. At present there are three known means of fighting dust: (1) coal tar; (2) petroleum and other oils; (3) chloride of calcium. Of these the first is the most efficacious and enduring.

stolid Dutch who told stories before the roaring fire of the open hearth and on winter evenings drew their children to listen for the tinkle and the jingle of bells as they described how the jolly little St. Nicholas, his sleigh loaded high with presents, would send his reindeer leaping over forests of along the white ground, and climbing on the chimneys when all were asleep, descend the chimney and leave his toys in the bulging stockings.

Thus the custom of Holland adapted itself to the new world, and the Santa Claus of the Dutch (through a contraction in the Dutch of 'Sank' to 'Sank' the name was changed) became transplanted in America as Santa Claus, who was described as the jolly little old fellow who lived in the North Pole and spent the whole year round in making toys and presents to be distributed to his child friends at Christmas time.

Instead of a generous little saint laboring in his workshop in the North Pole, the big factories of Europe and America are now recognized as the Santa Claus who makes presents which are distributed by fathers and mothers on Christmas eve. Nor is the Santa Claus of the new world the same as the Santa Claus of the old world, who employed geniuses to invent new mechanical toys, but many thousands of peasants in Europe perennially carve and design trees, houses, soldiers, dolls and other playthings dear to the juvenile heart.

Brief Bits From Everywhere.

Roumania, Servia and Greece all have a greater population of men than women. Only one, on an average, out of every 1,000 married couples live to celebrate their golden wedding. The highest inhabited place in the world is the Buddhist monastery of Haimo, in Tibet, which is situated about 17,000 feet above sea level. Gypsies are usually admitted to be of Egyptian origin, but as a matter of fact they probably came originally from India and reached Europe about the beginning of the fifteenth century. Very important to shipping is the fog horn in the fog horn on Pollock's harbor pier. This, like some musical instruments, is worked by means of a "reed," which is actuated by an electrically driven air compressor. In China, where all the telegraph lines are owned by the Government, the bulk of the operators are women and a large proportion of the clerks in the postoffice are women. In the United States, too, act as conductors on the transients. As the result of experiments, it has been found that the greyhound is the fastest of all four footed animals. When going at full gallop it can cover twenty yards in about a second, and in a minute and twenty-eight seconds a speed that comes very near that of a carrier pigeon. There are few thoroughbred horses that can exceed fifteen yards a second. Foxhounds have a record of four miles in six and a half minutes, or about eighteen yards a second. Officials of the Boulogne fire brigade this season visited Folkestone to study the system for calling out their men that is adopted by the local fire brigade. In the daytime two maroons are fired from the head fire station, when the men, all employed by the corporation, as plumbers, painters, lamp lighters, roadmakers, etc., wherever at work, at once respond to the "call." After working hours the "call" is given directly by the firemen, by means of electric bells and telephones. The rhinoceros of India has the thickest skin of any quadruped. Steamships can move much more quickly in deep than in shallow water. Russian railways are most dangerous in the winter months, when millions of passengers are either killed or hurt. Ornithologists have discovered that crows have no fewer than twenty-seven different cries, each distinctly referring to a different action.

A fruit orchard in this country is usually composed of orange blossoms, Germanies use myrtle, Italy white roses, Spain red roses, Greece vine leaves and Bohemia rosemary. Lion tanners frequently perfume themselves with lavender. There is, it is said, no record of a lion ever having attacked a trainer who had taken the precaution of using this perfume.

The trees in the streets form a special feature of Folkestone. About 4,000 in number, they include handsome horse chestnuts, plane trees, ginkgos and limes. In Castle Hill avenue, 100 feet wide, with four rows of trees, the horse chestnuts make a particularly fine show. A very unique institution in the New York zoo is what is known as the "drinking cage." The cage is the largest of its kind in the world, being 55 feet high, 72 feet wide and 155 feet long. Large oak and other trees grow in this cage, and the birds live within its wire netting bounds in the utmost comfort. The cage is built of iron pipes, which are covered over with thin-meshed netting. A doctor at Yokohama, Japan, has built himself a novel house with a view to guarding against microbes. The walls of this remarkable edifice are made of black glass. The house is hollow, the interiors being filled up with a solution of salts of soda, which is intended to regulate the temperature of the interior. The windows are hermetically closed and air is only admitted after passing through filters.

Germs in Money Cause Death.

Myxodema, a rare disease, which was brought on in his case by continual contact with paper money, caused the death of Wednesday night of Edward H. Hall, a 27-year-old man of New York. Twenty years spent in counting currency infected Mr. Hall with the deadly germs that lurk in the ordinary bank note, and for ten years prior to his death he had been a sufferer from the strange malady that baffled medical skill.

Mr. Hall entered the service of Arnold, Constable & Co. as a young man. For more than twenty years he was the principal cashier of that firm, until he was compelled to resign his work because of the attack of myxodema. According to his son, Warren B. Hall, it was Mr. Hall's custom to moisten his thumbs in counting bills, and years of practice so affected his hands that the skin became hard and dry and cracked open in cold weather. A general thickening of the tissues set in, which was followed by complications involving the kidneys and circulatory systems, later developing into Bright's disease. Two weeks ago Mr. Hall's condition became so much worse that he was removed to St. Luke's hospital, where he died.—New York Herald.

Never Had His Hair Cut.

This town boasts a modern day Samson, in an eccentric old man, who, like the hero of old, has never permitted his hair to be trimmed. He wears long locks, which hang nearly to the ground. He is a powerfully built man, and he stands six feet five inches. The man is John Fitzpatrick, 75 years of age, and who, though so old, can lift a barrel of salt weighing 270 pounds, at arm's length over his head.

One of his recent feats of strength

was at the Yakima county fair, when, in the presence of many persons, he picked up a granite boulder, which, when previously weighed, tipped the scales at 450 pounds. He raised the huge oblong stone in his arms, carried it forty feet, and loaded it into a wagon box with no assistance.—Maple Falls (Wash.) Dispatch.
